New SEC Rule Means Holdings Of Dalio, Einhorn, Soros And More Could Go Completely Dark

Some of the biggest investors in the world would see their holdings “go dark” if the SEC implements a new rule concerning Form 13F disclosures that it has recently proposed.

Names like Paulson, Einhorn, Druckenmiller, Bacon, Tudor Jones and Soros could all see an added layer of opacity to their holdings as a result of the SEC’s proposal to limit Form 13F filers to those who hold stakes of $3.5 billion or more. Even Ray Dalio, who manages $138 billion, could see added opacity to his holdings as a result of the rule. His firm holds only $5 billion in stocks.

The current threshold for Form 13F filers is $100 million and the value of most of these firms’ holdings in the U.S. is less than the proposed $3.5 billion threshold requirement.

Even Paul Singer’s Elliott Management could wind up going dark, as his firm has only about $3.4 billion in stocks and convertible bonds and another $2 billion in equities, according to Bloomberg. Managers like Leon Cooperman have said that it would be nice to reduce the regulatory burden required for the current threshold.

Patriotism vs. Globalism in 2020: A Country Is at Stake

By Veronika Kyrylenko

Given the extraordinary pace of events in America and the world this year, it is not hard to imagine that a bystander — perhaps a bug-eyed alien who has been following the series "The Earth" — would be pleased with the dynamics of the show. But he also would be puzzled at the rapid twists of the plot. The U.S., for example, enters a 2020 season in all its might and glory, with the strong economy, where unemployment for everyone is low, where reduced taxes and regulations promise further growth, and the basic indices of economic activity spell "victory" for the funny-looking guy who made it happen. Then — BAM! — a "deadly virus" hits — eh, unimpressive...the mortality rate would have been much higher for the sake of the show; 2 percent is a rookie number (would be even lower if the infected were not placed in the nursing homes). Nonetheless, America goes into lockdown, losing trillions of dollars. Unemployment soars. Then — BAM! — massive protests accompanied by rioting, looting, arson, vandalism and sheer violence not as a response to...

Back to the Pandemic and the panic, Geneva, the European seat of the United Nations, including the headquarters of WHO, is basically shot down. Not unlike the lock-down that started in Venice and later expanded to northern Italy until a few days ago – and now the lock-down covers all of Italy. Similar lock-down may soon also be adopted by France – and other European vassal states to the Anglo-Zionist empire.
