Five Indicted For Voter Fraud in Illinois During 2016 Election

I thought liberals said President Trump’s claims of voter fraud were rare or don’t exist? Well, a unicorn must have been found in Illinois, because the State’s Attorney office just indicted some people for — you guessed it — voter fraud.

Five people have been indicted in Lake County, Ill. — a county North of Chicago — for illegally voting in the 2016 general election.

The five indictments include three cases of illegal immigrants voting along with two cases of people “voting more than once.”

According to the Lake County News-Sun, the following people have been indicted:

- Rodriguez
- Flores
- Moroles
- Alvarez
- Mejia

Academic Elitists Have Invented A New Way To Rig Voting In The Future

May 24, 2019 by IWB

The founders sought to solve the problem of regional manipulation in Presidential elections through the Electoral College, which assigned “points” (electoral college votes) to each state according to population levels. This turned voting for presidents into a kind of game, whereby candidates could use strategy to campaign in certain states to effectively secure more points than their opponents. It removed the dominance of major population centers as a factor and made it possible for rural voters to gain an upper hand over metropolitan voters.
